

Structural measurements become degenerate at high density

